

ABSTRACT

A voice recognition peripheral device has a voice processor for facilitating conversion of speech into text and a communication port for facilitating communication with a computer. The 5 voice recognition peripheral device may cooperate with a PDA to provide speech recognition and/or text to speech conversion for a variety of different applications.